

Shared Health Information Seminar

- Tired of repeating your medical history?
- Having trouble remembering all your medications?
- Want to see your medical information online?

We are working towards a future when – with your permission – health professionals will be able to access and share your health information. This means health professionals will have the ‘big picture’ before deciding on your treatment.

You will be able to see your health information too, and have more input into your own care and treatment.

Your invitation

A series of community seminars is being held to get your feedback on these future changes in sharing health information. Attendance is free.
